96 comments about someone and there dogs when they have no idea who the owner is or that the "PUPPIES" are just that "PUPPIES" and still learning. We as humans do things we are not supposed to growing up, we cut ourselves, burn ourselves, crash cars, drink and drive, life is a learning process.. It is very, and I can't stress that enough, very sad and unfortunate for the situation. They snuck out not even by the owner, the owner had no idea that they snuck out due to they were sleeping in the room with him with both doors closed. But I also cannot stress how loving these boys are, again they are only puppies and mess up just like anyone else. Please if anyone know about what I'm ranting, I just ask you take into consideration that life isn't perfect or fair, but judging someone over one unfortunate incident is not the best solution. Some people take things very serious and can cause them emotional trauma.

So apparently my puppy's Grizzly and Axel are over aggressive, like seriously? There is no way they'd ever hurt anyone they are the most lovable little boys ever. Anyone can tell you that.

Andrew Bragg Court because a letter was sent to the town saying they were so aggressive people were in danger and people couldn't sleep without there eyes open. No fuckin way. Your just an old grumpy immature man.
