

Estimated U.S. Cities, Counties, States and Military Facilities with Breed-Specific Laws

Estimated number of countries worldwide with breed-specific laws is also included.

Updated by DogsBite.org December 20, 2018 Originally compiled by DogsBite.org October 12, 2011 Sources are available at DogsBite.org

Updates to this document are made once per year in December or early January by DogsBite.org, unless otherwise indicated. For the most up to date information about a particular state's breed-specific laws, please see that state's page at the following location: http://bit.ly/BSLestimate

Summary of Estimate

Notes:

[1] Not all jurisdictions within a county that restricts specific breeds are subject to the county law. This document lists all incorporated cities within such counties and in several states, also includes incorporated towns and villages, but makes no determination as to whether these incorporated municipalities are required to abide by county law.

[2] Breed-specific ordinances have been enacted by municipalities in 37 different U.S. states. Currently, no U.S. state has a state-level pit bull law, but a number of states regulate wolf-dog hybrids under state law.

[3] Sources are derived from the DogsBite.org website and Wikipedia. This document makes no determination as to whether the military facilities listed actually contain privatized housing.

[4] Jurisdictions in 52 countries around the world have breed-specific laws. 41 of those countries have national level breed-specific laws, such as England, Spain, France, New Zealand and dozens more.
